Los Angeles, CA– OneHockey, one of the world’s leading organizers of youth hockey tournaments, is proud to announce that 33 and counting teams from across Canada will participate in its tournaments throughout the United States this season. Teams from British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario, and Quebec are set to experience what has been described as one of the most fun, entertaining, and kid-centered hockey tournament experiences in the world.

Founded in 2004, OneHockey has built a reputation for hosting premium tournaments where the spotlight is on the players and the joy of the game. With a unique approach that blends competitive play and fun-filled activities, OneHockey tournaments offer an unforgettable experience for players and their families.

“It’s a really special year for these Canadian teams,” said Sebastien Fortier, CEO of OneHockey. “They’re about to see firsthand what makes OneHockey tournaments stand out. We are so excited to welcome teams from across the provinces to our events.”

Fortier’s connection to hockey runs deep. His father, Gaetan Fortier, was a key figure in the tournament industry in Sherbrooke, Quebec, during the 1990s. He was in charge of what was, at the time, the largest hockey tournament in the world for 13- and 14-year-old players, bringing together teams from 22 different countries over a span of 10 years. Several of those players had a long and successful NHL career. His dedication to making the event all about the players left a lasting legacy, and it was Gaetan who inspired Sebastien to follow in his footsteps, always prioritizing the players and their experience.

“My father kept pushing me to think about the kids first, to make the tournaments for them, and that’s what I’ve tried to do with OneHockey,” Fortier added. “That’s how OneHockey has grown into one of the largest and most renowned tournament groups in the world.”

The Canadian teams will compete in tournaments in some of the most exciting locations in the U.S., including California, Minnesota, Las Nevada, Ohio, Syracuse, Danbury, and Boca Raton, Florida. While spots are filling up fast, there is still limited availability for teams that wish to join.

With nearly two decades of experience, OneHockey has redefined youth hockey tournaments, creating a truly family-friendly atmosphere that celebrates the spirit of the game. Whether it’s the lively music, mascot appearances, players interviews, or red carpet treatment, OneHockey tournaments are designed to be an experience unlike any other.
